COST OF FOOD GREATLY ADVANCED

Restaurants in the Big Cities Forced to Increase Prices—Potatoes Soon to Become a Luxury.

How Restaurant Prices Have Jumped.

Ham and eggs, from 25 cents to 30 cents.

Fried eggs, from 15 cents to 20 cents.

Pork and beans, from 15 cents to 20 cents.

Corned beef and cabbage, from 20 cents to 25 cents.

Plain steak, from 30 cents to 35 cents.

Tenderloin steak, from 40 cents to 50 cents.

Veal cutlets, from 20 cents to 25 cents.

Pies, from 5 cents to 10 cents.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 5.—Most of the "chain restaurants" and lunch rooms of New York city today fell in line with those which yesterday suddenly raised their prices on practically all the dishes they serve. The reason given is that the prices of commodities have risen from 10 to 100 per cent within the last year.

Regular "business men's noon lunches," which two days ago cost a quarter, today cost thirty cents, and the price of most individual dishes has been raised. Potatoes have become a luxury. Restauranteurs explained today that last year Jersey spuds were $1.70 a sack and that this year they are quoted at $3.50. It is predicted that they will reach $6 before long.

Other increases pointed out as the causes of the rise in restaurant prices are: Beans, $9.65 for 100 pounds, formerly $5.90; peas, $6.75, formerly $3.85; flour, $6.60, formerly $5.10; eggs, 44 cents, formerly 36.

Boarding houses are expected to follow suit in raising the prices for meals. Some already have done so.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The cost of food in Chicago today is from 50 to 100 per cent higher than it was a year ago. Increases have been made in all the higher class restaurants within the last week. All meat and egg orders were made five cents higher. Chickenpie is now 15 cents and oyster stews 20 cents, an increase of a nickel.

Increased cost to them is given as the cause by restaurant proprietors. They declare virtually everything for sale in general grocery and meat markets is higher, the increases varying according to the food.

ALL DELAWARE IS "DRY."

Three Classes of Voters Responsible Says Newspaper.

The Downsville News says: Beginning with the first of October the county of Delaware became nominally dry, that is, no intoxicating beverages may legally be sold in the county. There are three conspicuous reasons for the defeat of the traffic. First, a large class of the voters are unalterably opposed to the traffic from principle, as they affirm. Second, many business men believe that they will have fewer poor accounts under no license. Third, a considerable number of voters believe that eight out of every ten liquor dealers do not scruple to violate their license. There is no doubt that many voters would vote for the traffic if they knew the law would be severely respected. These three classs of voters have finally completely overpowered the license faction in Delaware county, Colchester being the last town to pass into the dry column.

Mrs. Townsend, Psychologist.

Mrs. Grace Olive Townsend, a psychologist, representing the Courtland Scientific Society, is in Kingston studying local criminology. She has been spending some time in Bridgeport studying conditions there and as a result of her research reached the conclusion that nine-tenths of the crime in that city was caused by the "floating population" lured there by tales of much work and high wages. She was in recorder's court this morning, but was disappointed as no cases were tried, the police having found everything quiet during the night. She is a woman with an interesting personality and is deeply interested in her work. Her sketches of criminal work are published in a magazine issued by the society. From Kingston she expects to go to Albany.

May Laugh at Movie Shows.

Fred Rogers of Orangetown, who went to court to obtain the right to laugh during a moving picture show, was upheld by a jury in the Rockland county supreme court recently. Rogers sued M. E. Mirabel, a theater owner, who, he alleged, barred him from the house. The defendant contended that Rogers was boisterous and therefore was requested to leave the show. Rogers's witnesses declared he only laughed heartily. The jury, over which Justice W. P. Platt presided in New City, awarded Rogers $100.

Struck by an Automobile.

Kenneth Rockefeller, a nine year old lad of Germantown, was struck by an automobile Tuesday afternoon and his skull fractured. The machine, which is said to be a Dodge car, passed on at high speed. Efforts are being made to locate the car and its driver and the village is up in arms against auto speeding as a result.

MILK SCARCITY CAUSES RIOTS

Stations Beseiged by Women Who Demand Milk for Babies—Borden Company May Make Peace With Dairymen.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 5.—The first indications of panic of rioting due to the threatened milk famine came today. Hundreds of women seeking milk for their babies stormed milk stations in Harlem and when told the supply on hand was exhausted became hysterical and panic-striken. The police were rushed to several stations to prevent serious trouble.

The first outbreak occurred at a station in east 107th street. Three hundred women called there. A supply of only 100 quarts was on hand and it was quickly exhausted. As the fortunate ones went away hugging the precious bottles the disappointed ones began to raise a disturbance. Police were sent for but when they arrived the women had moved on to another station on 112th street. More trouble was threatened there and another call was sent for police.

The threatened riots have caused state and city officials to vigorously renew their efforts to bring about a settlement between the dairymen and distributing companies.

Separate peace between the Borden company and the farmers today loomed up as the only ray of hope of ameliorating the milk crisis which threatens more and more to develop into a serious famine. There were indications that the Borden company, which distributes one-fifth of the city's supply, may break away from the other big distributors. It is the only concern willing to deal directly with John J. Dillon, state foods and markets commissioner who is acting on the Dairymen's League as spokesman. The latter said today that he and the Borden officials would "get together again" but added that the league will under no circumstances make any concessions. The Borden firm comes nearest to the farmers' demands, offering an increase of 35 cents a hundredweight. The other big dealers stand pat on their original offer of 31 cents. The farmers demand 45 cents.

Meanwhile Mayor Mitchel is expected to renew his efforts today to bring the two sides to a settlement.

Raids and riots continue to be reported from up-state counties in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Great quantities of milk intended for this city are being dumped into road ditches every night.

State Attorney General Woodbury will begin his investigation tomorrow.

Today's supply was the smallest since the termination of the contracts on September 30. It was less than thirty per cent of the normal supply.

Utica, Oct. 5.—Increasing offers from nervous dealers to stubborn milk producers, a general tightening of the Dairymen's League lines, fresh organization of the league in some districts and the discontinuance of at least two milk trains by the New York Central Railroad featured the milk strike in central New York today.

Indications now point to a speedy settlement of the situation, say the men who are handling matters for the league. No fresh disorders of milk dumpings were reported today but wherever non-league farmers are still drawing their milk to tabooed stations they are being closely watched by pickets, who are in some cases stationed in trees along the road. One farmer at Waterville, who is drawing to the station, goes armed. Shipments from this section shrunk still further today and optimism prevails in every rural community concerning the outcome. As the strike goes on instances showing the solidity of the farmers are multiplying daily.

Would Tie Up R. R. Ferries.

Facing defeat by the New York Central Railroad, the New York Harbor Boatmen's Union threatens to call 1,100 more men from the ferryboats in the Hudson and East rivers. The West Shore Railroad, which is leased by the New York Central, continued its ferry service between Cortlandt and Forty-second streets and Weehawken, and some lighters used by the Central for freight betwen Manhattan and the Jersey side were kept in operation.

Bridge Work Still Underway.

Workmen in the employ of the contractors having the contract to erect the concrete abutments for the Sleightsburgh bridge are still at work on the Esopus side of the creek getting ready the ground for the erection of one of the abutments to be built there. Material for concrete for the abutments has not been received as yet as far as known.

Chamber of Commerce Boom.

Active work on a membership campaign for the Chamber of Commerce, Middetown, has been begun by representatives of the American City Bureau which plans to get a membership of 300 at $25 annual dues.

A Concrete Floor.

The Central Hudson Steamboat Company is having a concrete floor laid on the dock in the rear of the warehouse on Ferry street.

HOYSRADT & CASE LEASE FACTORY

Kingston Factory Corporation Leases Entire Ground Floor for Term of Five Years to Local Firm.

In line with its well known policy, officers of the Chamber of Commerce working in co-operation with the Kingston Factory Corporation, have arranged a five year lease of the entire ground floor of the factory corporation building on Cornell street to Hoysradt & Case, the well known firm of machinists. The removal of the machine shop, which has been occupying quarters in the Palen building on Pine Grove avenue, is now under way and before November 1st, Hoysradt & Case will be in the home where ample facilities are available for a largely increased business.

The firm in question is composed of Louis Hoysradt and George M. Case, who have successfully operated a general machine business for some time. Only recently it was obliged to turn down a large order as the present shop did not have the facilities to fill the demand. In the new quarters it is believed that work on a similar contract will be begun before the first of the year, by which time at least 25 skilled machinists will be employed by this enterprising firm.

PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED TODAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 8.—Eighteen new cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to the state health department since noon yesterday in ten counties. There was one death at Ira, Cayuga county.

The new cases follow:

St. Lawrence county, 2; Oswego county, 2; Westchester county, 4; Otsego county, 1; Onondaga county, 3; Cayuga, Rockland, Sullivan and Orange counties, 1 each; Ulster county, 2. The total number of cases outside of New York now totals 3,460, while the leaths number 570.

Middletown had its thirteenth case of poliomyelitis reported Wednesday and four new cases were reported at the state health department there that day as follows: Haverstraw, Rockland county; White Sulphur Springs, Sullivan county; and Malden and Saugerties, Ulster county.

Willis Settle Davis, Jr., the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis S. Davis of Livingston street, Saugerties, died at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Crosby at Katrine, town of Ulster, Wednesday morning, after a few days illness from infantile paralysis. The boy's two arms were affected.

Only a Rumor.

There has been a persistent rumor about town today that one of the children of the Rev. F. P. Wilhelm, former pastor of the Livingston Street Lutheran Church, was ill at the family home in Bronxville with infantile paralysis. There is no foundation to the rumor.

Parade in Newburgh.

Several firemen from this city are at Newburgh today for the parade of Orange county firemen. Seventy-nine organizations are expected to be in line.

LABOR SCARCE IN MANY BRICKYARDS

Brick, in common with all other building materials, is suffering from the prevailing shortage in labor and the advance in wages paid for unskilled work. This class of common labor is being paid as high as $3 a day for eight hours' work in New York. Also there is a dearth in the supply of machinists and strong factory labor. This condition in the field of labor is both limiting the output of supplies and increasing the cost of manufacture. The demand is absorbing practically all the material that such local conditions, can be produced, while the production, in many cases, is greatly restricted. In the Hudson River district all the works combined are producing only about thirty-five per cent of their capacity, while it is difficult, and in some cases impossible, to obtain quotations for open market delivery. The outlook is for even greater restriction in output, as the negro laborers begin their yearly migration to warmer climes and the Hungarians and Syrians seek other work elsewhere. Hudsons are holding firm at $7 to $7.25 wholesale, but the outlook is for higher range of prices.

MR. DECKER ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT

At the twenty-second annual meeting of the Young People's Organization of the Hudson River Central Baptist Association held at Warwick, N. Y., on Tuesday, Lester B. Decker of this city was elected vice president of the association for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were: President, Charles V. Sanford of Warwick; secretary, Miss Bertha E. Vetter of Poughkeepsie; corresponding secretary, Miss Anna Mitchell of Rhinebeck; and treasurer, Warren Aird of Newburgh. The meeting was one of the most interesting held in some time.

Oltman Hearing Adjourned.

High School Limit 5 Years.

Because several students have been in Poughkeepsie high school for seven years, the board of education has adopted a rule limiting to five years the time in which any pupil can consume in completing the regular four years high school course.

Storm King Work Suspended.

The Hayes Construction Company, contractors on the Storm King highway, have suspended operations, pending a settlement with the Highway Department which the contracting concern claims has been paring down on the monthly estimates.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH BY GAS

Mr. and Mrs. George Osterhoudt of East St. James street were nearly overcome by gas fumes in their home Wednesday evening and but for the prompt action of Mr. Osterhoudt there might have been fatal results.

During the evening Mrs. Osterhoudt had mixed bread and at the conclusion of the operation pushed the mixing bowl back on the table. Just back of the table is a gas jet and in pushing the bowl back the burner was turned on without Mrs. Osterhoudt knowing it. Mr. Osterwas asleep at the time and shortly after awoke with a choking sensation and found the room filled with gas. Mrs. Osterhoudt was seated in a chair in a stupor from the the fumes and although in a dazed condition himself Mr. Osterhoudt called in Dr. Norwood who revived Mrs. Osterhoudt and attended Mr. Osterhoudt. Although practically recovered this morning from the effects of the experience Mrs. Osterhoudt is still in a nervous condition. Mr. Osterhoudt had recovered sufficiently this morning to resume his position with Crane and Shultis the ice dealers and was on the job delivering ice to the patrons of the firm.

ARTISTIC SHOW WINDOWS.

They are a Feature of Up-to-Date Fall Opening.

Two of the most handsomely arranged display windows ever projected into the mercantile limelight of Kingston are conspicuous decorative features of the fall opening today at the Up-to-Date Cloak and Suit Manufacturing Store on Wall street. A most elaborate color scheme is used most effectively as a background for stunning tailored suits and imported evening gowns in either window which are objects of interest to hundreds of women shoppers.

The floors of each window are of gold and black checks with a background of ivory and green, the latter color being contributed by elm leaves tastefully arranged. Two columns stand in each side and the tops of these are adorned with electric lights, each globe being of a different color. S. L. Beloff, the window decorator for the three Up-to-Date stores, received many compliments for the artistic result he has attained in the grouping of the models and the background.

In one of the windows is a Hudson seal coat trimmed with skunk, which is valued at $1,000. There are also three imported evening gowns from the New York office of the company which illustrate the latest dictates of fashion, while in the other window three imported tailored suits, made to order for the store, furnish accurate examples of the correct styles for the coming season. Altogether the showing of the Up-to-Date is one of the most notable afforded in the shopping district for some time past.

From Kipp to Doerrer.

On the application of Elizabeth E. Kipp of Mount Marion for leave to change her name to Elizabeth E. Doerrer, Judge Jenkins has granted an order authorizing such change of name on the sixth of November upon complying with the provisions of section 2414 of the code of civil procedure. Benjamin Rowe of Saugerties appeared for the petitioner.

Emerald's First Dance.

SLAUGHTER COWS IF STRIKE FAILS

That is Alternative Suggested by Officer of New Paltz Branch of Dairymen's League—Sheriff Protests Shipments in Dutchess County.

A new phase of the "milk strike" now being waged against the big dealers by the New York State Dairymen's League developed this week when, as stated by I. C. Barnes, secretary of the New Paltz branch of the league, it was said that if the farmers are beaten—and it does not seem as if they will be—there will be a wholesale slaughter of cattle in this state, as the farmers have come to the conclusion that there is nothing for them in the milk business at the prices at present paid by the dealers.

Speaking of the effect the strike will have on the consumer, Mr. Barnes says, "If the present movement to secure right prices for milk fails, the wholesale slaughter of cattle by discouraged farmers will be the direct result, which will mean a shortage of milk for many years to come instead of for just a few days. The interest of the consumer as well as that of the producer is at stake in this movement, as will be seen should such a condition come to pass."

Speaking further of the strike, Mr. Barnes says, "There is no indication of any weakening on the part of the members of the league anywhere in the state, and a successful outcome of the league campaign is assured. The present campaign is the culmination of activities spread over a dozen years to unite the efforts of the producers to obtain a living price for milk. All experiments in the past have proved that the farmers have not been receiving as much for their milk as it costs to produce it."

These sentiments voiced by the secretary of the New Paltz league, an authority on milk matters, seem to be the same as those held by all the big milk producers of this section. All seem to feel that the present fight cannot help but put the production of milk on a paying basis.

Dutchess Sheriff Busy.

Sheriff Conklin of Dutchess county asserts that he has stopped the dumping of milk by members of the Dairymen's League. The sheriff dispersed a crowd of farmers at one station and sent a motorcycle scout working in their behalf back to his home in Connecticut. More milk went out of Dutchess county Wednesday than on any three days of the week but the total was not large.

Announcement was made in Pawling on Wednesday afternoon that Paul Brady, of Pittsburgh, an official of the Westinghouse Corporation, and J. Kerr Branch, of Richmond, Virginia, multi-millionaires, who own large estates near Pawling, together with other wealthy estate owners near there, had subscribed more than $35,000 for the purchase of J. D. Coleman's large feed plant in Pawling for the purpose of turning it into a pasteurization plant.

Guards in Orange County.

To insure the delivery of a milk car containing six cans of milk consigned to a New York distributing company, four deputy sheriffs guarded the car on the electric road between Middletown and Goshen. Considerable milk has been spilled in this section. In some instances, it is charged, the pickets entered the milkhouses of the producers and destroyed the milk.

Smith of Kerhonkson.

Joseph Smith of Kerhonkson was brought to jail Wednesday night to await the action of the grand jury, having been committed by Justice of the Peace James S. Van Etten on a charg of sodomy. The justice's action was taken after a hearing at which Uriah Van Etten, the complaint, was represented by LeRoy Lounsbery of this city, and Smith was represented by John R. DeVany of Ellenville.

No New Infantile Paralysis.

No new infantile paralysis cases have developed in Kingston within the past few days. Many parents are keeping their young children out of schools for two weeks on the theory that if any of the pupils have been exposed to infantile paralysis it will break out in that time.

Local C. E. Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor for election of officers will be held on Friday evening at the Church of the Comforter. Following the business session refreshments will be served. An interesting program has been arranged for the meeting and a large attendance is expected.

New Paltz Normal Opens.

The State Normal School at New Paltz opened its fall session Wednesday with an increase of nineteen students and three new members of the faculty. The normal school students expect a busy term making up for some time lost in the belated opening.

There will be preaching in the Reformed Church Sunday evening, October 8, at 7:30 o'clock.

SAW CARNRIGHT CUT HIS WRIST

Kynk Testifies to Singular Conduct on Part of Saugerties Banker a Week After His Will Was Made.

The fact that Albert Carnright of Saugerties was in the act of slicing his left wrist with a razor when he was discovered on the Athletic Field at Saugerties one week after he had made his will and a short time before his death was brought out in the contest over his will before Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court this morning.

The testimony was given by Clarence Lynk, who resides on Washington avenue, Saugerties. He saw Mr. Carnright a short distance from his house at eleven o'clock in the morning of July 31st of this year, walking past his, Lynk's house. Between four and five o'clock in the afternoon he found Mr. Carnright on the Athletic Field. Before that Lynk had been told by his wife that a neighbor had asked whether he had seen Mr. Carnright.

Mr. Lynk found Mr. Carnright on the Athletic Field and the bank president was cutting himself on his left wrist with a razor. Lynk called out: "Mr. Carnright." And Mr. Carnright folded up the razor and held it in his left hand.

Lynk at once telephoned to Mrs. Sickles, and a little later Dr. Rudolph F. Diedling arrived. The doctor took the razor away from Mr. Carnright and put it in his own pocket. Then he helped the banker to his automobile and took him to Mrs. Sickles's house. Mr. Carnright had some conversation with Dr. Diedling which Mr. Lynk could not hear, but he did hear him ask the doctor who he, Lynk, was.

For two or three weeks before Mr. Carnright's last illness, Mr. Lynk had noticed him on the streets, feeling his way along. He noticed a change in Mr. Carnright during that time. When Mr. Lynk found him on the Athletic Field, Mr. Carnright was lying down. The witness and Dr. Diedling helped him to his feet after the doctor had taken away the razor, and Mr. Carnright walked to the waiting automobile.

On cross-examination Mr. Lynk said that Mr. Carnright's eye-sight was not very good, and when he stopped at the jewelry store to look at the clock—Mr. Lynk having testified on his direct examination that he had seen Mr. Carnright take out his glasses to look at the clock—he looked through magnifying glasses. Frequently Mr. Carnright passed the store where Mr. Lynk is employed, which is three doors away from the bank. Mr. Lynk used to say: "Good morning, Mr. Carnright, it is a very hot day;" and Mr. Carnright replied: "It is that." Except for saying "Good morning," Mr. Lynk had no conversation with him in the bank of which Mr. Carnright was president up to the time of his death.

The matter was adjourned for further hearing until October 11th. Benjamin Rowe with Jenkins & Shufeldt, of counsel, appeared for the contestants; Byron L. Davis, with Arthur C. Connelly and Brinnier & Canfield appeared for the beneficiaries under the will.

20 FIREMEN UNDER A FALLEN WALL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—Twenty firemen were buried, shortly before noon in the collapse of a wall at Christian Brothers College during a fire which already had claimed the lives of two aged and bed-ridden priests and an attendant named Nolan, who leaped from a fifth story window of the infirmary when he saw he could not rescue the two men.

Six firemen have been taken from the ruins of the wall. It is feared others are dead.

The fire which began at 7:30 o'clock this morning is still raging. More than half of the college buildings have been destroyed.

"The Blue Envelope."

The excellent farce, "The Blue Envelope," which ran a successful course during the latter half of the past season at the Cort theater, New York city, will appear at the Kingston Opera House next Monday night. The original Cort theater production will be presented. The farce presents a series of ludicrous situation. Its story has to do with two men who take refuge under the guise of dangerously sick patients in a sanitarium, where one is claimed by an adventuress as her husband and the other as her too ardent admirer. The fun which emanates from their many predicaments is fast and highly enjoyable. The seat sale opens Friday morning.

Dr. Day on Suffrage.

At the suffrage meeting at Wiltwyck Inn on Saturday afternoon Dr. Mary Gage-Day will speak on, "Public Health Reasons Why Women Should Vote." Dr. Day is state chairman of public health for the New York State Federaton of Women's Clubs and a member of the Ulster County Medical Society. She is an interesting and pleasing speaker.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf of Clintondale has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell on White street for a few days, and Saturday they were shoppers in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dobbs motored to Rosendale one day last week, and had a delightful trip.

Mrs. Kelly and children of Inogue, Long Island, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Auchmoody, parents of Mrs. Kelly, for a short time. They have their automobile here and have all had many pleasant rides. They will return soon to their home in Long Island.

Miss Cora Coutant of this place is now at the telephone office in Marlborough and likes it very much there.

Captain R. H. Decker spent a few days the first part of the week in Washington Hollow with his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Decker.

Mrs. Charles E. Brown entertained the members of the U. D. Society for their regular business meeting last Saturday afternoon. There was a good attendance and a pleasant time for all.

The ferryboat opened up the winter schedule on October 2 so all will have to plan to return from Poughkeepsie early in the future. They have given the public a good long siege of late crossing and all enjoyed it and now as the days are getting shorter and weather cooler they will be satisfied to return before dark.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Decker of this place are the happy parents of a young daughter. Both mother and child are doing nicely.

Alfred Palmer of New Jersey has been a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer, at their home on Grand street.

It is now reported that another ferryboat will be put on between Poughkeepsie and Highland, making two boats running. S. A. Crum has expressed his opinion in regard to this very favorably. It seems some Poughkeepsie people deem it very proper, still many say the best service is given here of any place along the river, yet Mr. Crum always has made it his business to accommodate the traveling public, and has succeeded, and as in the past, he will endeavor to keep this object in view, and if the public treat him courteously he will reciprocate. It is not a very easy matter to get a boat just when one wants it and it must be taken into consideration that one must be gotten that will enter the ferry slip all right. These things are difficult, therefore try and be patient.

Mrs. Merinus Pressler and mother, Mrs. Lake, and Mrs. L. B. Maynard, Mrs Hugo Steller and daughter, Dora, were shoppers in Poughkeepsie on Thursday.

Charles Harcourt of New Paltz was a business visitor in Poughkeepsie also Lorin Schantz of this place Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill of New York city, who have been summering at "Hillair," left there Wednesday last for their homes in the city. Mr. Roberts has been ill for some time here. His many friends hope to hear of his speedy recovery.

Mrs. R. H. Decker was a shopper in Poughkeepsie on Monday.

Miss Bertha Dimsey visited her parents at Lloyd last Sunday.

Tuesday evening the Grange held their regular meeting and they had a very good attendance. They had discussions on fruit. A short program and refreshments closed the evening. Sorry to say there is not as much interest in these meetings as there should be. Who can wonder at it? There are so many societies and lodges for a small place and so many ways for money, people cannot attend everything. The churches must be supported and there is where the interest should be manifested. Hope to see church affairs better attended.

The Daughters of America held their regular meeting Wednesday evening and had a fine attendance. There were different ideas brought forth and these council members planned over two weeks ago to hold a masquerade to celebrate their third anniversary. This will be a Hallowe'en party. It has been advertised and should be well patronized, as they need some funds. Each member can invite three and they hope the people will accept the invitations and help them out. There will be given more to the reporter in regard to it. This is to take place the 31st of October.

Mrs. Russell and children of East Orange, N. J., who have been spending weeks at the home of Mrs. J. Mandershied, a sister of Mrs. Russell, returned home last week, accompanied by Mrs. Mandershied and her daughter, Ciara.

Mrs. Robert Cummings, Fred Webster and Harold Upright were in Poughkeepsie Monday on business.

O. E. S. held their regular meeting Monday evening. Over twenty members were present. We were informed these people will give a masquerade on Monday evening, October 30, being in the form of Hallowe'en. They are at present anticipating a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Holden of Poughkeepsie were guests last Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Maynard and son, William, motored to Wallkill last Sunday and had a very delightful trip.

Richard Lent was a week end visitor of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lent, on Grand street. He is employed in Saugerties.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson were out to Grahamsville fair last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer entertained an automobile party of six from New Jersey recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Miller of Poughkeepsie visited Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Seaman had as their guest for the week end their son Louis, who is in Beacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schantz were in Lloyd Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Symes.

William Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis of Milton avenue, is now employed in Poughkeepsie. He worked in the greenhouse for J. Donovan for several years in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, were out of town last Sunday.

The official board of the First M. E. Church held their regular business meeting Monday evening in the church parlors. A good attendance and good reports, and quite a great deal of business transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Whitley, who have had a full house this summer on Grand street, have now left the boarding house and moved to their handsome new house in the village, which has been recently erected. They certainly will take pleasure home. It is in a fine location and where one can see a great deal going on.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bloomer of Vineyard avenue, have several guests yet at their boarding house.

Mrs. George Main, Sr., will have as her guests for the week end her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Main, Jr., from Kingston.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Oct 4.—As an echo of the late primary election, it may be interesting to note that only about one quarter of the enrolled voters of this village took the trouble to express at the polls, their choice as to the several candidates at this election. Does it pay?

Miss Ellen Smith returned to Oneonta Normal School on Tuesday.

Miss Mabel Foertner with her friend, Miss Johnson, who has been visiting her for the past few days, returned to Poughkeepsie to resume her duties, on Tuesday.

Our village school resumed work on Monday last. There was a good attendance. The school fell soon into its usual routine. Some new scholars appeared. The familar faces of the large class which entered Kingston high school, this fall, are much missed.

Mrs. McPherson, who met with an injury to her hip some weeks ago, is enjoying life very comfortably, while confined to her bed.

Miss Pearl Stauble will take up a business course in stenography in New York city. Miss Ellen Stauble has a temporary position in a Brooklyn hospital.

Levan Smith is taking a business course in New York city.

The late publication, "Architecture of Colonial America" is still attracting visitors to Hurley, the latest being Mr. and Mrs. Homstreet of Dobbs Ferry. Some days ago the same book induced Mrs. Samuel Unterlyer and her friend to look over the old landmarks of Hurley.

Members of the Myer and Snyder families of Marbletown road and Miss Jane Hasbrouck went on an automobile trip to Roxbury in Delaware county on Friday last. The rain storm in the afternoon marred the enjoyment to some degree but the trip with all its attendant experiences was most enjoyable. Roxbury is the old home of the Gould family.

George DuMond is loading a shipment of fine telegraph poles for use in Coxsackie.

The grange met at the parsonage on Monday night.

Mrs. William Schweinler of Kingston spent the week end at her mother's, Mrs. Van Sickle.

The heavy frost of Sunday and Monday nights put a stop to further growth of tender vines and garden stuff.

Mrs. DuBois and daughter of New Paltz are visiting her father, J. P. Roosa.

Messrs. Van Sickle, Taylor, Newkirk and Cutler motored with Thomas Hotaling to the Danbury fair on Tuesday. The pronounced the trip a most enjoyable one and the fair was also good.

With care and culture all may find

Some talent that is rare.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A dessert that is a great favorite among the young folk is this: Take the juice of three lemons, three oranges, three bananas, three cupfuls of sugar and three cupfuls of rich milk. Put the bananas through a sieve, mix well and freeze. A pinch of salt is an improvement.

Peach Parfait.—Take one quart of well-mashed peaches, the juice of two lemons, add two cupfuls of sugar and a quart of boiling water, boiled together five minutes; let cool and freeze to a soft mush; beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, put in a tablespoonful of sugar and one of vanilla, add to the frozen peaches and finish freezing.

Tomato Salad.—Fill small firm cupfuls made by taking out the centers from tomatoes with a mixture of orange, pineapple, banana and sweet green pepper, mix with cream or a mayonnaise dressing; chill and serve.

Quince Balls.—These are so pretty and delicious that every housewife should put up a jar or two to use as a garnish. Peel the quinces and with a small potato scoop cut them into balls; drop into a rich sirup and cover while cooking. They may be taken out of the sirup, rolled in sugar and dried; then they may be dipped in fondant and used as a confection. In the sirup they may be used as a garnish for puddings, ice creams or salads. The quinces left after the balls are removed need not be wasted, for with apple and lemon a nice preserve is the result.

In making elderberry pies use a tablespoonful of vinegar and a quarter of a teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon. A few grapes, fresh or wild, or even a teaspoonful of grape jelly is a decided addition to the flavor of an elderberry pie, as it gives a touch of piquancy which heightens the flavor of the berries.

Apple Filling for Layer Cake.—Grate a good-sized tart apple, mix with sugar and beat into the white of an egg; continue beating until the mixture is smooth and velvety, then spread on the cake. This filling has the advantage of many, as it keeps the cake moist. A few drops of flavoring may be added if desired.

STRANDED AGENTS APPLY FOR AID

Women Brought to Kingston to Sell Health Books Apply to Mrs. MacMillan for Aid—Their Fares Paid Back Home.

The tribulations of some book agents were brought to the attention of Recorder Lang on Wednesday when Mrs. MacMillan, social worker, called his attention to the fact that she had received a visit from a young woman, who said that she with four other young women had come to Kingston from New York to sell the residents here health books, and that they had been left stranded in Kingston without a cent in their pockets.

From the story told Mrs. MacMillan it appeared that the young women had answered an advertisement in a New York city newspaper, and had applied to a hotel there where their services were accepted and they were given daily lectures in the gentle art of parting the public from its loose change in return for the highly instructive book they had to offer. They were then sent to Kingston understanding that their board bill here was paid and that if they did not like their work at the end of the week they would have their fares paid back to New York city.

The "crew" as a group of agents are called, were met at the West Shore station by the man who was to have charge of the crew and conducted to a local hotel, and the next day set out to canvass Kingston. The health book was sold on the installment plan, and after $12 had been paid it became the property of the installment payer. The young woman informed Mrs. MacMillan that the book carried with it free treatment from specialists in various diseases for two years. For instance if the owner of the book became ill all he or she had to do was to diagnose what the disease was, turn to the book, find the address of the specialist versed in that particular disease and then write him and receive treatment until cured.

The week was up on Wednesday and some of the women decided they wanted to give up the job. They were informed by the hotel proprietor that the board bill had not been paid.

That led her to seek the advice of Mrs. MacMillan.

The hotel man also began to wonder if he was to be paid his board money for the crew.

This all led to a gathering in the office of Recorder Lang on the Strand on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. MacMillan was there in the interests of the girls, the hotel man was there in the interests of his board bill and the manager of the crew was there to explain what he intended to do.

The matter was thoroughly discussed and Recorder Lang finally arranged for the manager to pay for the board bill. It was also expected that he would pay the carfare back to New York of the stranded crew but this he refused to do as he said it was not in the contract signed by the girls.

The board bill was paid later on Wednesday.

Today Mrs. MacMillan got in touch with the young women who were stranded here and arranged to pay their fares back on the night boat to New York, and it was expected that they would leave this evening.

According to the manager of the crew, business in Kingston was not as brisk as expected, and only one member of the crew had taken in enough money to pay her board bill.

Of the five agents that came to Kingston two secured means to return home leaving three whose fares will be paid by Mrs. MacMillan.

The books they were selling were issued by the American Health Society according to what one woman told Mrs. MacMillan. The agents also were known as "nurses" and the manager in charge of the crew was known as "Dr."

Origin of Foxe's "Book of Martyrs."

Foxe's "Book of Martyrs" was published in March, 1652, as the "Actes and Monuments" of the martyrs, a title borrowed from an earlier book, says the London Chronicle. The famous volume might never have appeared at all but for the association of Foxe with the printer Day of Aldersgate street, in whose business Foxe took an active part. On the tombstone of Day in the church of Little Bradley, Suffolk, the partnership is thus immortalized:

He et a Fox to writ how martyrs runne
By death to lyfe. Fox ventured paynes and health
To give them light. Daye spent in print his wealth.

Even in those days the alien problem troubled industry, for we find Foxe appealing to Cecil to relax the law and permit his friend Day to engage more than four foreign printers.

He Stood the Test.

"What assurance have I that you do not wish to marry me merely for my money?" demanded the heiress.

The impecunious suitor drew himself up proudly.

"Money is nothing to me," he sneered. "I shall be happy in the prospect of never earning a cent in my life, so long as I have you."

And, having put him to the test, she was supremely content.—New York Times.

Her Patience About Gone.

Helen was fond of playing outdoors and a series of rainy days had tried her patience severely. She had been sitting by the window hopefully watching for signs of clearing, but the downpour continued. At last she exclaimed in a tone of mingled reproach and disgust: "Well, God, I should think you would be tired of this yourself."

THE PEASANT'S RIDDLE.

And How the Sicilian Kept the Promise He Made to the King.

A Sicilian laborer told us this story. He says his mother told it to him when he was a child. It sounds like one of Grimm's tales and is undoubtedly very old folk lore:

"My mother told me that once there was a king who saw a peasant working in a field and asked him how much he earned. And the peasant said, 'Four carlini a day.' 'What do you do with your 4 carlini?' asked the king. 'One I eat, the second I put at interest, the third I return, and the fourth I throw away.' This puzzled the king, and he asked the peasant what he meant. And the peasant said:

"'I buy my food with one. I feed my children with the second, and that is putting money out at interest. I feed my old father with the third, and that is paying back what has been given me. I give the fourth to my wife, and giving her money is throwing it away.'

"'That's a good riddle,' said the king, 'and I must tell it to my friends. Promise me that you won't tell any one the answer till you have seen my face a hundred times.' So the peasant promised, and the king went back to his palace and asked them the riddle. Nobody could answer, but one remembered seeing the king talk to a peasant, so he went to the peasant and asked him about it. But the peasant said: 'I can't tell you. I promised the king I wouldn't tell the answer till I had seen his face a hundred times.' 'Oh, that's easy!' said the king's friend, and he took a hundred lire out of his pocket, and every piece of money had the king's face stamped on it.

"So the peasant told the king's friend the answer to the riddle, and the king's friend went back to the palace and said to the king, 'I can guess your riddle now,' and he did. Then the king became angry and said: 'You couldn't have guessed it. That peasant has broken his promise.' So the friend had to tell the king how he had fooled the peasant."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SACKING A THEATER.

What New Yorkers In 1765 Did For an Offensive Play.

Here is an account of the sacking of a theater in New York from the Gazette of that city of May 3, 1765:

"The play advertised to be acted last Monday evening having given offense to sundry and divers inhabitants of this city, who thought it highly improper that such entertainment should be exhibited at this time of public distress, when great numbers of poor people can scarce find means of subsistence, whereby many persons might be tempted to neglect their business and squander that money which is necessary to the payment of their debts and the support of their families, a rumor was spread about the town that if the play went on the audience would meet with some disturbance from the multitude.

"This prevented the greatest part of those who intended to have been there from going. However, many people came, and the play was begun, but soon interrupted by the multitude, who burst open the doors and entered with noise and tumult. The audience escaped in the best manner they could. Many lost their hats and other articles of raiment. A boy had his skull fractured and was yesterday trepanned. Death is his. Several others were sorely set upon and injured. But we heard of no lives lost. The multitude immediately demolished the house and carried the pieces to the common, where they consumed them in a bon fire."

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 5, 1916

Mr. Seabury did his level best to make out a case against the Whitman administration when formally notified of his own nomination for Governor by the Democratic party. He submitted some unsupported testimony regarding the alleged achievements and merits of the Wilson administration and then outlined the contentions which he expects to prove in the State campaign. Whether or not the former Judge of the Court of Appeals expects to convict George W. Perkins of grand larceny is a matter of small moment to the voters. It is when Mr. Seabury attacks the presiding officer of the recent Republican conference at Saratoga that he shows at its true worth his self-vaunted personal integrity, even at the expense of his erstwhile colleagues on the Court of Appeals bench. In attacking Judge Miller as a champion of special privilege, the Democratic candidate said: "One of the last acts that I performed as a judge of the Court of Appeals of this state was to file a dissenting opinion protesting against the decision which allowed his clients to get a large amount of public money upon a very flimsy pretext." In that single sentence Mr. Seabury shines, and the polish loses none of its lustre through the fact that he himself is putting it on. The inference is plain that the candidate's associates on the bench of the highest court of the State were parties to Judge Miller's getting money on a "very flimsy pretext." It follows therefore that Governor Whitman and the Court of Appeals judges are all in the Seabury "rogues' gallery," as the friends of special privilege. It is pretty good company. The Governor is under obligations to his opponent for the quality of campaign ammunition marking the latter's initial attack.

Once publicity focuses the popular eye upon a thing, reformers and uplifters in many widely varied lines are prompt to seize upon it as a vehicle for bringing their respective panaceas to public attention. Particularly has this been true of poliomyelitis, which this summer has made a new mortality record for itself that has not been confined to children. A prophet arose the other day and declared that the chief contributing cause of the infection and its virulency was vaccination against smallpox. Nicotine has since been pointed out by other and equally well informed, no doubt, experts as the source of weakness in the race responsible for the inroads of this strange disease. Anti-alcohol forces have not yet blamed booze for poliomyelitis but there is still time for them and the suffragists, too, to view with alarm conditions they are fighting as offering ready means for the progress of "polio." It is not a new state of affairs by any means. We have hope of some individual coming to the front who may have been cured of the disease as a child by the simple expedient of a liberal "chaw" of tobacco which practice has since been continued with highly beneficial results. The occasional partakers of alcoholic stimulants who are yet numerous in the land may assert their immunity from these plague germs with a force equal to that of the antis. Until medical investigation has thoroughly studied the disease and its many curious aspects no correct theory will have been formulated. It is only by intelligent, sane and steady investigation that medical science gets anywhere. The causes and cures volunteered by hobby-riders are on a par in value with the Friedmann tuberculosis serum and "Doc" Cook's polar discoveries.

Business experience is desirable for any man who handles the affairs of others and one of the qualifications which is most often lacking in public officials is the qualification of actual business experience. There are too many theorists with hobbies of an impractical sort which they want to experiment with, using the public as a subject, and each year shows that the result is disastrous to the subject. For the important office of county treasurer the Republican voters of Ulster county have called as their candidate a man whose business experience well qualifies him to guard with the utmost care the trust imposed in him. There is hardly a man in the county who does not know Philip Schantz personally, and knowledge has been followed by deep respect on closer acquaintance. In his public life he has brought into active play the same fidelity to the public which in private life he has used toward his own affairs. Wide acquaintance and broad experience have combined to give him first-hand knowledge of what the public wants and expects in its officials, and he has measured up to the highest standards and met the expectations of everyone. No man in the county has devoted the same amount of time to public affairs, and the best proof that he has given unqualified satisfaction is furnished by his repeated re-election as supervisor of the town of Lloyd. His neighbors know him better than anyone else, and their expression of his character and ability as shown in their votes is a record by which the voters of the rest of the county may well be guided.

Kept on Knocking.

He was not a very rapid wooer and she was getting a bit anxious.

Again he called and they sat together in the parlor, "just those two."

A loud rap came on the front door.

"Say you're out," said the gay deceiver.

"Oh, no. That would be untrue," murmured the ingenious one.

"Then say you're engaged," he urged.

"Oh, may I, Charlie?" she cried as she fell into his arms.

And the man kept on knocking at the front door.—New York Globe.

Jim's Real Boss.

... year old James takes his father as a delightful joke, and does not always mind him promptly. One day his mother listened at the top of the stairs. "James," said the father's voice, "do what I tell you!" The boy looked up and grinned. His mother smiled and awaited the outcome. "Jim," said the father solemnly, "you do what I told you, or"—he lowered his voice—"I'll sic your mother onto you!" As Mrs. Harrod put her apron over her head to stifle her mirth, she had a fleeting glimpse of Jim junior flying to do what his father had ordered.—Christian Register.

Disappointing.

A glassmaker's van had drawn up at the curb and a number of men took from it a large plate glass pane to be placed in a shop window. As they proceeded to the window, carefully bearing the pane of glass, the usual crowd stopped to watch. Among these people were a couple of young fellows, who appeared more interested than any one else. After a while, wearying of the deliberations of the men with the glass, one of the young men said to the other: "Come, Bill, we might as well go along. They are not going to let it fall."—Rochester Post-Express.

The Same Lie.

Chairman Herbert S. Houston said at the Associated Advertising Clubs' convention in this city: "A good advertisement should be as sharp and pointed as the Irishman's answer. The witty Judge Morris was on the Irish circuit, and one evening at dinner he tried to tell a story, but an Irishman kept interrupting. Finally, in despair, Lord Morris seized the ... by the sleeve. 'Sorry,' he said, 'surely, man, ye want to hear the story o' the rint breaker o' Bally-Skibereen.' 'No, no, me lord,' said the interrupter, 'that's the lie I told ye mesilf yesterday.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Nobody.

In a city in the south, the mansions of the ancient aristocracy have fallen to the low condition of boarding houses, in which the survivors of the old families eke out a live of poverty. But in the eyes of those who remember the oldest order, and in the eyes of the old generation of negroes, these ladies maintain unimpaired their highest estate.

Before one of the houses there rolled up one day a hearse. A negro mammy watched the preparations. A passerby asked her solicitously:

"Somebody dead, mammy?"

"No, honey," answered mammy. "It ain't nobody 'tall—it's jes' a boardeh."—New York Evening Post.

Shirts For His Feet.

Mrs. L. and Mrs. D. are adjoining neighbors in a suburb near New York. Each had just finished hanging out her week's wash.

"I declare," remarked Mrs. L. as she hung up the last sock, "to look at all those stockings one would think that I washed for a centipede."

"Me, too," returned Mrs. D. "Just look at those shirts."—Christian Herald.

An English King's Death.

William Rufus was killed by an arrow, either accidentally or with murderous intent. He died in the New forest. His body was stripped by tramps and the next day was found by a charcoal burner, who placed the naked corpse on his cart, hoping to receive a reward. On the way to Winchester the cart was upset, and the king's body fell in the mire. Covered with filth and black with charcoal, it arrived in Winchester, where it was buried in the cathedral. A few years later the tower fell and crushed the tomb, and 600 years after the Puritans rifled the grave and played football with the king's skull.

DAY OF ATONEMENT.

Observance of Yom Kippur Begins at Sunset on Friday.

The Day of Atonement or "Yom Kippur," the tenth day of the month of Tishri, begins at sunset Friday, October 6 and ends at sunset Saturday, October 7. The thought underlying the day is expressed in the scriptural words, "On this day He will atone for you, to purify you from all your sins." It is a day, therefore, of reconciliation of man with his fellow-man and with God, and comes as a climax to the holiday season which began Wednesday evening, Septembr 27 with the New Year's Day and continued through the ten days of penitence. On New Year's Day of Judgment of ordinary people, who had been neither completely righteous nor utterly sinful was left undecided and the opportunity was given them for repentance; now the Day of Atonement provides all men with the possibility of returning to their God and of finding reconciliation with Him through prayer.

The Day is the most solemn of all days in the Jewish calendar. It is passed in fasting and prayer. The whole day is spent in the synagog. In the evening there is the service which commences with the chanting of the well known Kol Nidre prayer. The day proper has four services. Of these the Mussaf or additional service contains a description of the atonement rites as practiced in the ancient days in the Temple at Jerusalem; and the Neilah service is understood to be held at the time when decision is finally made as to man's fate, and thus the Neilah prayers instead of having the usual phrase, "Inscribe us in the book of life," uses the expression: "Seal us in the book of life."

According to Jewish tradition expressed in an ancient law-book, the Day of Atonement, when spent in praying and repenting, will bring pardon for sins between man and God; but as for the sins committed by man against his fellow man the Day cannot bring pardon until he has appeased his fellow man. This idea is the basis of the effort always made before the Day of Atonement to bring peace between such friends who have become estranged and are on unfriendly terms with one another; and in this way, the Day will put the worshipers at peace not only with his Maker, but also with his fellow man.

At Temple Emanuel.

Services will be held Friday evening at 7 o'clock and Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at Temple Emanuel on Abeel street in charge of Rabbi Rosenberg. School on Sunday at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Wasted Effort.

Comb and brush in hand, a Pittsfield (Mass.) man sat in front of a mirror and fussed and fumed trying to prevail on a refractory hair to lie down. He resorted to water—then to oil, but all without avail. The hair simply wouldn't behave. Finally he looked a little more closely and discovered that the "hair" was a crack in the plaster behind him.

MANY MINOR LEAGUE STARS SHOW CLASS

HIGH-PRICED PLAYERS FROM MINORS.

When a minor league star is purchased by a big league club and the size of his price is mentioned in the papers the fans who read about it are pleased to express some amusement. There has been more than one $1,000,000 beauty dished up from the bushes only to strut his little hour upon the major league stage and then be heard of no more. And the fan has begun to feel that the higher they are priced the harder they fall.

Marty O'Toole is probably the most illustrious of the $1,000,000 lemons, and Marty deserves every bit of his harsh repute. When the Pirates came clean with $22,500 to the St. Paul club for O'Toole they seemed persuaded that he would be worth it. Most anyone admits today that he was not.

There have, of course, been others in O'Toole's class, but scarcely so many on the whole as to warrant the idea that every costly busher is sure to flunk. On the contrary, there are many who have been worth every cent of the thousands they have cost, and there have also been others you may have heard of—Speaker and Cobb, f'instance, and Matty and Walter Johnson—who were had for a few hundred dollars.

It is reasonable to suggest that good fortune has had lots to do in these affairs. If it were possible for a manager to make sure of a player's class in making a deal there would be fewer deals. But though more than once the big price has been a mistake there are plenty of cases when it was not.

Charley Comiskey, the White Sox owner, has been stung more than once, but then again he has picked up talent that was worth all it cost. Ray Schalk is said to have brought something close to $20,000, and the Sox will never regret a cent of it. Hap Felsch is another high-priced beauty who cost just about as much as Schalk, and Comiskey is more than pleased with the deal.

Chief Meyers and Hal Chase were considered high-priced youngsters when they first came up to the majors and they both performed with all the class their bush-league work had promised. Both the chief and Hal were considered most costly in a day when the prices for players were more moderate. Fritz Maisel cost the Yanks $12 000 and the release of Daniels and Midkiff when he joined them from Baltimore.

OLD WOODEN BATTLESHIP BURNED FOR HER COPPER.

(U. S. Frigate Franklin before being burned.)

The old United States frigate Franklin, was burned on October 2 at Eastport Me., by a salvage company to recover the copper in her rivets and also about $4 000 worth of gold which is said to be mixed with the copper. The Franklin was sold by the government to the salvage company for $16,766.

The old frigate was built at Philadelphia in 1815 and was 188 feet long with a 50 feet beam. In 1863 she was rebuilt and had an engine of 1 800 horse power installed. Her hull was also made over and enlarged to 265 feet in length with a 53 feet, eight inch beam.

The Franklin was of 5,170 tons displacement and cost $1 331 000. As flag ship of the European squadron she sailed from New York June 27th 1867 with Admiral Farragut on board, for a cruise to European waters lasting about seventeen months and during the time visited nearly every large seaport there and also visited several ports in Asia and Africa.

RESIN FOUND ON BODY OF WIFE OF BROKER; LATTER HELD FOR MURDER.

(Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Small and the ruins of the bungalow where Mrs. Small's Body was found.)

Mountain View, N. H., Oct. 4.—It is stated here that the body of Mrs. Florence A. Small, which was found in the ruins of her summer home at Ossipee which was destroyed by fire, had been covered with resin.

This fact was revealed by a thorough examination, in which Medical Referee Frank Horne was assisted by several other physicians.

Mrs. Small's husband, Frederick L. Small, Boston broker, is under arrest on a charge of murder. He is in jail at Ossipee.

It has been determined that Mrs. Small was shot and strangled before the house was burned. The resin is supposed to have been applied to insure destruction of the body and thus eliminate evidence of crime.

The home was burned Friday night. The subsequent discovery that Mrs. Small had been slain caused great excitement throughout the vicinity. Small's arrest followed immediately.

RUSSIA IS FACING ECONOMIC CRISIS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Petrograd, Oct. 5.—Enormous rise in the prices of food and other necessaries and increased taxes are producing an economic crisis in Russia.

The statistical department of the Moscow City Council has presented to the Ministry of the Interior a memorandum, comparing the prices of the chief commodities for July of this year with those for the month previous to the outbreak of war.

From this memorandum it is seen that the price of bread has increased by from 43 to 58 per cent; of millet 97 per cent; of buckwheat 131 per cent. The dairy products show an average increase of 100 per cent. Cream butter has increased 123 per cent; cheese 180 per cent; Dutch cheese 344 per cent. Rice has increased 150 per cent, coffee 150 per cent, macaroni 50 per cent. The price of vegetables has increased from 40 to 150 per cent, and meat is marked by an increase of from 200 to 300 per cent. Fish now costs twice as much as before the war and with the introduction of meatless days shows a tendency to rise still more. Herrings are already five times the prices they were before the war.

Manufactured articles, such as shoes, hosiery, stationery, have increased to four or five and in some cases eight to ten times as much as they were when the war commenced. Muroff, writing in the Russkoe Slovo, calculates that the cost of living generally has increased by 200 per cent. He also gives an interesting table showing the increase of prices in Berlin and Moscow.

Only five items, out of seventeen—lard, eggs, ham, potatoes, and rice—have increased more in Berlin than in Moscow. Moscow, is the largest railway junction in Russia and is especially advantageously situated with regard to the inner market.

In Petrograd the situation is worse and in many provincial towns things are almost, if not, as bad. Wages have not even approximately kept pace with the increased cost of living, an increase partly due to speculation and the underground methods of some unscrupulous trades, but chiefly owing to inertia on the part of the government.

At their various congresses public bodies have indicated a series of practical measures, the adoption of which would go a long way towards lessening the evil. But the first attempt made by the minister of agriculture in Naumoff, to realize such measures by fixing the price of bread stuffs, cost him his position. With a government composed almost entirely of large landowners, there is not the slightest possibility of checking the upward tendency of prices.

Germany is not slow to realize her possibilities in this Russian crisis. Recently, overtures and suggestions with regard to peace have been made through various channels. One of these proposals has now come to light as having been made to the vice-president of the Russian Duma A. D. Protopopeff, during his short stay in Stockholm on his return journey from England by the secretary of the German embassy in Sweden who spoke with the authority of the German ambassador, Baron von Lucius de Stoedton.

The German diplomatist said that under no circumstances would Germany, unless forced by arms, give back the Baltic provinces. In exchange for this it was proposed that Russia should have Constantinople, that there should be a restitution of status quo in Serbia, while the future of Poland should be deferred to the International Peace Conference. On the other hand, Germany would be ready to evacuate both Belgium and France and even pay damages to Belgium. No war indemnity with regard to the other powers would either be demanded or paid.

M. Protopopoff is understood to have heard him in silence and to have replied that he did not regard the conversation as serious and would not speak about it in Russia. It was only owing to pressure from a German source that this conversation became known and M. Protopopoff was called upon to give an explanation.

Revolt of Small Masculinity.

Larry's mamma had been trying to impress it on his mind that little boys should always be polite to little girls and let them be first in games and play. But this did not seem to appeal to Larry that day, and he remarked in an injured tone: "I wish there was a special kind of boy that didn't need to give up to girls."

HOMEMADE PORTIERES.

How to Make Attractive Hangings For Your Living Room.

Very pretty portieres can be made at home by exercising a little ingenuity. One pair seen lately was of soft green cross cloth. Two bands of olive brown linen were applied to the curtain about six inches from the bottom. The tops of these bands were outlined in a heavy line of golden tan rope silk in outline stitch, and the lower edges of the bands were treated in the same way in olive green rope silk. Three embroidered bands of outline embroidery also run the length of the curtains. These bands were composed of three lines of rope silk, two tan and one green in the middle.

Another very effective curtain can be made by using gray material and applying to it a hem of darker gray, decorated with small cubes, embroidered in solid yellow and outlined in black.

A portiere that is a little more intricate in the making will amply repay one for the trouble. Two harmonious tones of tan can be used nicely. Cut a continuous band, about six inches at the sides and twelve inches at the bottom, and apply this band all the way up the sides and across the bottom of the curtains about nine inches from the edges. Embroider the corners of the bottom of the band in cubes in the brightest harmonizing color note of the room.

A GOOD STUNT.

How to Shop and Take Care of Baby at Once.

A hint for the woman who must take her baby with her on shopping trips will not come amiss. This is not a practice to be encouraged, but there are times when the baby absolutely must go along. If she has one of those small basket quarts which can be made stationary at a minute's notice she will find it convenient for lifting the baby on and off the car, she will not have to hold the child in her lap, or, what is worse, stand with it in her arms; she can wheel the carr through the stores, and when it is time for lunch—here is the best part of it—she can lift the cart bodily to the chair at table or counter and bring the baby to a convenient high chair height. A woman who uses one of the little carts continually says that she has had a straw bag made to fasten on the back of the cart, into which she can drop her small parcels.

Spiced Peach Pickle.

A peck of freestone peaches, seven pounds of sugar, cloves, allspice and cinnamon to taste, one and a quarter gallons of cider vinegar. Select firm peaches and let them lie in hot soda water until the fur can be rubbed off with a coarse cloth. Allow the vinegar, sugar and spice to come to a hard boil, then add the peaches a few at a time. Let the fruit boil until a straw can be run through each peach. When done put in jars and pour the boiling vinegar over them. Sliced peaches can be pickled by this same recipe, allowing a sufficient quantity of fruit for the syrup to cover well.

Good Phrase.

A good phrase can never become a platitude. "The rosy fingers of the Dawn" is beautiful today, though it may have been hackneyed when Homer put it in the "Iliad."—George Monroe in the Atlantic Monthly.

STYLES IN CHINA.

Six Times a Year Clothing Changes at if by Signal.

The Chinese are nothing if not conservative in the matter of dress. It is the custom in China, as if by direct order, to change regularly the style of dress. It appears that there are no less than six distinct changes of attire that every self respecting Chinese of any importance must make, according to the season—heavy furs in the depth of winter, then light furs, then wadded garments, then lined clothes, unlined, and finally what the Chinese themselves call "summer clothes," made of China grass. These are in white and blue.

The Chinese wear caps made of plaited bamboo, lightly covered with silk. In the height of summer none but officials wear caps. There are ordinary black covered lined caps, and there are fur trimmed hats and fur caps.

Foreigners have been particularly struck by the fact that on the same day and throughout the vast country stretching over nearly as many degrees of latitude as America men change from one cap to another, from one style of clothing to another, as though by signal.

Occidental tailors have a good word for Chinese clothes. They aver that the Celestial cut for jackets is "perfect" so far as convenience goes, and in the opinion of many they are peculiarly elegant.—San Francisco Chronicle.

"I don't see why you call Perkins stupid. He says a clever thing quite often."

LES DARCY HESITATES

Australian Unwilling to Fight in United States.

Hinted That Middleweight Would Come If Guaranteed Lump Sum for Series of Bouts—Would Have to Meet Gibbons.

They still are trying to tempt Les Darcy, the Australian middleweight sensation, to come to America.

Despite all the talk of the Australian crack being forced into the army he is said to have hinted that he might make the trip provided that he was guaranteed a lump sum for a series of bouts and the money was placed in the bank before he sailed.

There is a growing suspicion that Darcy has no great inclination to come here, but could be induced to take the chance if guaranteed a fortune, win or lose. Other Australian boxers of lesser note have no trouble in leaving the country and it seems strange that an exception should be made in his case.

It may be that the real reason for Darcy's hesitation is that if he came here he would have to meet Mike Gibbons and Jack Dillon, two men who would be far more dangerous than any he has encountered so far in his remarkable career. Considering his youth and inexperience Darcy has done wonders, but it is a fact that the men he has defeated were more or less back numbers.

His knockout of Eddie McGoorty was the Australian's most noteworthy feat. It is well known that McGoorty had passed his prime several years ago. Jeff Smith, another of his victims, was on his last legs, and Jimmy Clabby was in the same condition. Darcy won on a foul from Smith and merely outpointed Clabby in 20 rounds without coming anyway near scoring a knockout.

Dillon and Gibbons are away ahead of that bunch and no doubt Darcy would rather wait and meet them in his own country where the conditions would be more to his liking. In a year or so from now, both Gibbons and Dillon will be less formidable than they are at present, and the longer Darcy delays facing them the easier it will be for him, provided he continues to improve.

PLAYING FOOTBALL IN SIAM

Native Game Played With Ball About Four Inches in Diameter, Hollow and Strong.

Lovers of outdoor sports would find one thing to interest them in Siam. It is the native game of football. This is played with a ball about four inches in diameter, hollow and strong.

The number of contestants varies, but play is sharpest when there are enough to form a circle about ten feet in diameter. Beyond that, the larger the circle, the slower the play.

The game consists in keeping the ball tossing in the air without breaking the circle. If a man misses his opportunity he drops out, and when but four or six remain the work is sharp and very pretty.

The ball is struck most frequently with the knee, but also with the foot, from before, behind and at the side of the player. A player has been known to let a ball drop directly behind his back, and then, without turning, return it clear over his head and straight into the middle of the circle, all with one well-aimed backward kick of his heel.

CHANGES IN FOOTBALL CODE

Referee Has Power to Award Touchdown in Case Foul Is Committed Preventing a Score.

Changes of importance in the college football code in effect this season are: The referee has power to award a touchdown to the offending side in case a foul is committed which prevents a score. If a team comes on the field late the other team can choose the goal. If the kickoff goes into the crowd or stand it is a touchback. If a blocked kick goes into the stand it is a safety. Players do not have to wear numbers for the pleasure or instruction of the public.

LEGEND OF THE CLOCK DIAL.

It Tells Why the Figures IV Were Altered to Read IIII.

It is a tradition among watchmakers that the first clock that in any way resembled those now in use was made by Henry Vick in 1370. He made it for Charles V. of France, who has been called "The Wise."

Charles was wise in a good many ways. He was wise enough to recover from England most of the land which Edward III. had conquered, and he did a good many other things which benefited France. But his early education had been somewhat neglected. Still, he had a reputation for wisdom, and thought that it was necessary, in order to keep it up, that he should also be supposed to possess book learning. The latter was a subject he was extremely touchy about.

So the story runs in this fashion:

"Yes, the clock works well," said Charles, "but," being anxious to find some fault with a thing he did not understand, "you have the figures on the dial wrong."

"Wherein, your majesty?" asked Vick.

"That four should be four ones," said the king.

"You are wrong, your majesty," said Vick.

"I am never wrong!" thundered the king. "Take it away and correct the mistake!" And corrected it was, and from that day to this 4 o'clock on a watch or clock dial has been IIII. instead of IV. The tradition has been faithfully followed.

Transparent Salt.

In the island of Santo Domingo there is a remarkable salt mountain—a mass of crystalline salt, nearly four miles long, estimated to contain nearly 90,000,000 tons, and the crystallized salt is said to be so clear that medium sized print can be read through a block a foot thick.

GASOLINE EXPERT BACK OF GAS PEP

The following letter has been received by President Emanuel Metzger, of the Nitrated Chemicals Company, manufacturers of the famous product, "Gas Pep."

Clinchfield Products Corporation,
Equitable Bldg., New York.
New York, October 2, 1916.

Mr. E. Metzger,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Metzger.—

I enclose herewith a clipping from the New York Times which contains some remarks by Dr. Bacon, an authority on gasoline.

You will note that he intimates that is same were mixed with a Naphthaline product a better result could be had. This will substantiate your views, and possibly you may be able to make use of this article by such an authority.

Yours truly,
J. M. HARRISON,
Sales Manager.

The statement of Dr. Bacon referred to in above letter and which appeared in the New York Times's report of the meeting of the Chemists' Club, held in Grand Central Palace, is as follows:

"An important conference was held in the Chemists' Club during the day, at which Dr. Raymond F. Bacon, director of the Mellon Institute for Industrial Research of the University of Pittsburgh, spoke on motor fuels of the future. He is considered an authority on petroleum products. Dr. Bacon said his tests had shown that we get less than 50 per cent of the full efficiency of gasoline when it was used in automobiles and that he believed a blend of 'chafing head gasoline' and some heavier naphthaline product would give better results than pure gasoline.

"He said that kerosene was now used in some heavy motor trucks, but, because of the production of tarry substances in the cylinders, was not proving altogether satisfactory."

The use of "Gas-Pep" increases the efficiency of gasoline from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. The cost is but 2-3 of a penny a gallon. It reduces the cost of operation of cars materially, saves gears and prevents carbon in motors. For sale at drug stores, garages, hotels and supply houses. A $1.00 package will energize 150 gallons "gas."—Advertisement.

BORDENS YIELD TO THE DAIRYMEN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 5.—The Borden Milk Company, which handles one-fifth of New York city's milk supply, this afternoon yielded to the farmers. The other big distributors are expected to follow suit promptly. This, it is believed, means an end to the threatened strike famine here.

"The Borden Company's surrender was not unconditional," it was explained by its vice president, H. S. Hallock. "The concern will insist on monthly contracts and will not deal with the farmers collectively through the Dairymen's League."

Consideration for the public, especially for the babies, prompted the company's action, Hallock said.

A hitch, it is feared, yet may develop in the settlement if the Dairymen's League insists that it be recognized.

Inherent Dread of Cats For Dogs.

The instinctive fear which cats have of dogs is illustrated very amusingly by stroking a dog and then caressing a blind and newborn kitten with the same hand that has touched the dog. At once the kitten will spit and fluff itself up in the most absurd way, distinguishing the smell of the beast which experience for thousands of generations has taught it most to dread.—London Standard.

MILDRED WHITLEY.

OHIO HIGH SCHOOL GIRL FIRST CHEER LEADER.

Martins Ferry, Ohio, Oct. 5.—The wild antics of the high school and college cheer leader are familiar to most persons, but who ever heard of a girl cheer leader? This city claims the distinction of harboring in its midst the first girl to lead the cheering for her school at a football game. It all happened last Saturday when Martins Ferry High defeated Bridgeport High, in a football game by a score of 55 to 0.

The boys of the Martins Ferry High School were not showing the proper enthusiasm, even if their team was winning. Miss Mildred Whitley, 17, pretty, and a junior, didn't like the lack of enthusiasm a bit, so she jumped over the fence, into the field and just made the rooters root. She danced, waved her pennant, jumped up and down and performed all the gyrations that honest to goodness cheer leaders do and how the crowd did root. It was the most enthusiastic football game ever seen here.

Miss Whitley will lead all the cheering hereafter and larger scores are expected.

Try Something Else.

If you don't like a thing and you cannot help it, forget all about it and go about something else. Some people spoil their lives because of something they cannot remedy. The failure fills their hearts with regrets and enmities and leaves their lives a swampy waste. Failures of this kind give place to good deeds if they are rigidly used.—Columbus Journal.

When Giving Castor Oil.

The disagreeable taste of castor oil may be concealed by giving the dose in hot milk flavored with salt and a sprinkle of black pepper. It is necessary to have the milk warm enough to mix with the oil or some of it will float on the surface. Castor oil can also be made more palatable by adding lemon juice.

Notaries Public.

Notaries public are said to have been appointed by the primitive Christians to collect such facts as were obtainable about the martyrs of the first century. The office afterward took a legal form and had to do with the attesting of deeds and other writings.—New York American.

The Usual Way.

Nodd—Awfully sorry to hear your house burned down. Did you save anything? Todd—Oh, yes! After some very lively work we succeeded in getting out all the things we didn't want.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Typhoid Fever.

The question, Who should be vaccinated against typhoid fever? has recently been answered by a noted physician of this country. He says all who come under the following heads should be vaccinated against typhoid, as their positions largely increase their chances for contracting it: Drummers and railroad men, all vacationists, especially campers; people who travel much; practicing physicians and nurses, all people who live in towns and small cities; people who live in the country; people who live in a town or community where typhoid is epidemic; people who eat at various hotels and restaurants; people who have no means of knowing whether their food has been free from flies and filth, and finally all people who have not big bank accounts or who have loved ones dependent on them. The doctor does not say as much, but he evidently means to include the whole world, for fear somebody will willfully be left out.

Another doctor who does not want to be responsible for any person's remaining unvaccinated and contracting typhoid fever and perhaps dying says that there are only two classes of people whom he does not advise to take the treatment—the dead and those who have already been vaccinated.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Oct. 5.—Upon invitation of the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church, the mothers of the church were very pleasantly entertained by the president, Mrs. Frank J. Potter at her home on Park street Tuesday afternoon. There were sixty in attendance and it proved to be a most enjoyable affair. All mothers not able to walk far were taken to Mrs. Potter's residence by auto. Following an hour or more at work, interspersed with Victrola music, the ladies were served with tea, very delicious sandwiches and cake, and with the refreshments a very pleasant social hour was coupled.

On Wednesday afternoon the ladies of the Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church entertained the ladies of the church in the lecture room. The room was made attractive for the guests. Autumn decorations predominated. After a social intercourse, followed by Scripture reading and prayer, Mrs. E. E. Count introduced Miss Huntington, a field worker for the standard bearers, who gave a very interesting talk for young people in whom she is especially interested, and a fine exposition of work for the women's missionary work. The speaker held her audience's attention, giving plain, practical truths an inspiration for work along missionary lines. It is the desire of the local ladies to start a "standard bearers'" or young people's missionary society in Ellenville. The ladies served very delicious refreshments which were enjoyed with a social intercourse. Mrs. E. A. Smiley, president, was not present at the meeting but Mrs. W. K. Shook, treasurer, was in charge of the affair, which was a very pleasant success.

The song recital of the Musical Club, of which Mrs. Henry Horton is the very efficient president, was held at the home of Mrs. John R. DeVany Thursday afternoon with a large attendance of members. A very interesting program, arranged by Miss Virginia Taylor, was given.

At the conclusion of the program the first rehearsal of carols for the "Community Christmas" was held. Other rehearsals are to follow and more particulars given. The next musical will be held at Sun Ray Villa, the home of Miss Helen Gaskell, on Thursday afternoon, October 26, and the subject will be "Grieg."

The barn at the New York Eastern Reformatory located at Napanoch was discovered to be on fire Wednesday morning about 10:30. The entire roof of the barn was enveloped in flames and burned quickly on account of hay in the loft. All the horses were out at work except the carriage team, which was quickly taken to safety. With vigorous efforts the lower part of the barn was saved, so that the barn will be rebuilt at once. Cause of the fire is not known, but very fortunate the fire was in the day instead of the night time.

Mrs. A. E. Cotter and daughters, the Misses Frances, Katherine and Gertrude Cotter, have returned to their home at Woodmere, L. I., after spending four months in Ellenville, occupying the residence of Lemuel DuBois on Center street. They made the trip home in their Overland touring car, of which Miss Frances is a most skillful driver.

ECLIPSED A PRINCE

Beau Brummel Outshone and Then Snubbed the Regent.

STORY OF A FAMOUS CRAVAT.

After His Historic Quarrel With Wales the Beau Won a Sartorial Triumph That Almost Choked His Royal Master With Envy and Dismay.

It was Beau Brummel who was described as "the glass of fashion and the mold of form," and today there are ordinarily only two things which the name of the famous dandy of the English court suggests. One is an arbiter of fashion, the other the incident in which Brummel asked of a companion of the Prince of Wales, "Who is your fat friend?"

In 1836 Beau Brummel still was living, and the New York Mirror, a weekly publication "devoted to literature and the fine arts," printed a biographical sketch of him as a figure in contemporary history. Reading it today makes very real a character now little more than a tradition.

"For an obscure individual without fortune or rank to have conceived the idea of placing himself at the head of society in a country the most thoroughly aristocratic in Europe, relying, too, upon no other weapon than well directed insolence; for the same individual to have triumphed splendidly over the highest and the mightiest—to have maintained a contest with royalty itself and to have come off victorious even in that struggle—for such a one no ordinary faculties must have been demanded," the Mirror said in its issue of June 4, 1836.

It will be well to recall here that George Bryan, Brummel's father, was Lord North's secretary; that the son at Eton and later at Balliol college acquired a reputation for being a "swell dresser," and that still later he was a favorite of the Prince of Wales, who was to become George IV. of Great Britain. The Mirror related the familiar story of the "fat friend," immortalized in a Punch cartoon, explaining the circumstances which led up to it.

A mutual friend had dared Brummel to give an order to Wales, who was then prince regent, and at a dinner the dandy said to him, "Wales, ring the bell!" The prince did so and when a servant appeared said, "Show Mr. Brummel to his carriage." It was to repay the regent for this public humiliation that Beau Brummel uttered his famous question the next day in the street. The prince was growing corpulent and sensitive of the fact, so a feud between the two was launched with the remark.

It is an old story up to this point, but the Mirror proceeded with some facts which probably have never been published since. Brummel boasted that he would put the prince regent out of fashion, made his plans at once and sprang his coup at a brilliant ball given by the Duchess of Devonshire. In the Mirror's own words:

"When the whole assembly were conversing upon his supposed disgrace, Brummel suddenly stood in the midst of them. Could it be indeed Brummel? Could it be mortal who thus appeared with such an encincture of radiant glory about his neck? Every eye was upon him, fixed in stupid admiration; every tongue, as it slowly recovered from its speechless paralysis, faltered forth, 'What a cravat!'"

And then the description of the cravat which confounded the guests at the Duchess of Devonshire's ball:

"There it stood, smooth and stiff, yet light and almost transparent; delicate as the music of Ariel, yet firm as the spirit of Regulus; bending with the grace of Apollo's locks, yet erect with the majesty of the Olympian Jove; without a wrinkle, without an indentation. What a cravat! The prince regent saw and shook, and, uttering a faint gurgle from beneath the wadded bag which surrounded his royal thorax, he was heard to whisper with dismay: '—— him! What a cravat!' The triumph was complete."

The Mirror added that the Prince of Wales sent an emissary to Beau Brummel to learn the secret of the wonderful creation in neckwear and that Brummel sent back word, "Tell your master that you have seen his master."

It was not until his debts forced him to flee from England and to take the obscure position of British consul at Caen, in France, where he contracted more debts and finally died insane in 1840, that the secret of the cravat became known. The Mirror said:

"There was found after his departure written upon a sheet of paper upon his table the following epigram of scorn: 'Starch is the man.'

"The cravat of Brummel was merely starched. Henceforth starch was introduced into every cravat in Europe."—Kansas City Times.

St. Bernard Dogs.

The true St. Bernard dog originated in the fourteenth century, being a cross between a shepherd dog from Wales and a Scandinavian crossbreed, half Dane and half Pyrenean mastiff. The last pure descendant of the tribe was buried beneath an avalanche in 1816.

There is a perfect specimen of a true St. Bernard dog in the Natural History museum at Berne, where the stuffed body of the famous Barry is preserved. There is plenty of St. Bernard blood left, however, crossed with other strains, and the fame of the breed can never perish.

Poets' Names.

If it be true that words create for themselves a special atmosphere, and that their mere sound calls up vague outer things beyond their strict meaning, so it is true that the names of the great poets by their mere sound, by something more than the recollection of their work, produce an atmosphere corresponding to the quality of e

Mrs. LEEDER'S AUTUMN

Millinery Opening!

FRIDAY and SATURDAY, OCT. 6 and 7

A glimpse at what Lady Fashion smiles upon is presented by our Opening Display of Fall and Winter Millinery Styles, and we invite the critical inspection of every woman in Kingston.

Like the blossoming of a bud we have watched this exhibit mature.

Today our showing is a full-blown flower. Its cultivation has been a slow and discriminating process — a ceaseless effort to include the worthy—the "different" fashions — and reject the unworthy kinds. We present it with the knowledge that each Hat is a masterpiece, and we challenge comparison with any other Kingston millinery for

Style, Beauty and Low Prices

We have no hats to "give away," because we're not in business for our health. What we DO give is the

and we should like all women of an economic disposition to become aware of that fact. Friday or Saturday would be a good time to come, feast your eyes and put us to the acid test. We promise to "make good."

Our exhibit is the latest, most authentic mirror of the accepted mandates of Paris, the acknowledged center of beauty in millinery. It is a summing up of the exquisite, the approved, the final modes of Autumn and Winter. The Hats you see here have an individuality that sets them above the commonplace. Try them on.

DONATION DAY AT THE SANITARIUM

The opening meeting of the year of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Sanitarium was held at the Sanitarium Wednesday afternoon. Much interest was expressed in the proposed work for the coming year. All present were greatly pleased with the improvements made at the sanitarium during the past year. Fire-escapes and two sun-parlors have been added both contributing greatly to the comfort and safety of the place.

After considerabe discussion it was thought wise to hold donation day earlier than last season, and it was decided, commencing this year, to hold it annually on Columbus Day, October 12.

The object of donation day is to give all citizens of the community an opportunity to make contributions of any kind, as jellies, fresh or canned fruit, vegetables, blankets, linens, or money in any amount. Anything, in fact, will be acceptable and gratefully received by the sisters in charge.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 5.—There was a generally strong tone to the trading on the stoock exchange at the opening today and although price movements were not extensive, they were in nearly all cases to moderately higher levels. Most interest was again attached to the railway shares, with New York Central the most active of this group, advancing a point to 114¼, a new high record since 1912. Lehigh Valley rose ⅞ to 85⅜, and Atchison with an advance of ⅜ to 108⅞ was at a new high mark for the year. Pittsburgh Coal was the strongest of the minor industrials, advancing 1¼ to 36⅜. Railway Steel Spring, Pressed Steel Car and Great Northern Ore made fractional gains. An advance of 1½ points was made in New York Air Brake, which sold at 162½. American Linseed continued in good demand. The common sold at 25⅛, and the preferred at 58¼. Central Leather reflected continued accumulation and advanced 1⅝ to 77⅛, a new high for that stock.

Activity marked the trading in the late forenoon and many stocks after making vigorous advances, declined sharply. Most interest was attached to the trading in Central Leather, which on heavy trading rose to a new high mark of 80. Many of the leading industrials were also active and strong. The railway shares, after early advances, met a supply as they have done on previous bullish spurts, and declined substantially. Money loaning at 2¾ per cent.

Most interest in the late afternoon was centered in numerous specialties, with the motor stocks prominent. Studebaker advanced three points to 136¾. Railway Steel Spring sold at 57¾, a gain of three points. Maxwell Motor rose over a point to 95. There was vigorous buying of Lehigh Valley, which advanced to 87⅛, against 84¾ at the close yesterday. B. R. T. moved up 1¾ to 86¾.

The tone at the close was strong. The motor stocks were the most prominent in the final dealings, with Studebaker selling at 138, a gain in all of over four points. The leading railway shares, after sharp advances in the early afternoon, declined under foreign sales. Steel Common and Anaconda declined fractionally. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

You Yourself Will Be the Poorer.

If you fail to do the kindly or pleasant act you had thought of, the one for whom it was meant will perhaps not know what he has missed, but will nevertheless be deprived of a pleasure that might have been his, while you yourself will be the poorer for your failure to carry out the kindly impulse.—Exchange.

McCormack

The popular tenor's song this month is a "McCormack song" if ever there was one. "Then you'll Remember Me" is just the kind of sparkling, melodious, flowing air from which "our John" can win the last touch of beauty. Perhaps you remember the lovely air in the "Bohemian Girl."

Customers are hereby warned that they acquire this record at their own risk, as it is likely to make their feet misbehave! Music-lovers long ago awarded Pietro the palm as an accordionist, and now they just sit back and let him have his way with them—that is, they sit back when he plays classical music. When he plays two ragtime numbers like this month's, there's no telling what may happen. You should have these two fox trot numbers, "Hello Hawaii, How Are You" and "By Heck!"

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Oct. 5.—World series-ing began in 1903. In that year the Red Sox and the Pirates fought it out for the title. The Sox triumphed. The attendance for those eight games went beyond 100,000 and the receipts totalled "over $50,000." It was considered "big stuff" in those days. But the increase in receipts and attendance during the past few years make it appear insignificant.

Here is a little table that shows the names of the competing clubs in all the series, with the total attendance, total receipts and total share for players:

1903; clubs, Pirates-Red Sox; games, 8; attendance, 100,429; receipts, $50,000; players, * (see note.)

1905; clubs, Giants-Athletics; games, 5; attendance, 91,723; receipts, $68,435; players $27,394.

1906; clubs, Cubs-White Sox; games, 6; attendance, 99,845; receipts $106,550; players, $33,401.

1907; clubs, Cubs-Tigers; games, 5; attendance, 78,068; receipts, $101,728; players, $54,933.

1908; clubs, Cubs-Tigers; games, 5, attendance 62,232; receipts, $94,-975; players, $46,114.

1909; clubs, Pirates-Tigers; games, 7; attendance, 145,295; receipts, $188,302; players, $66,924.

1910; clubs, Cubs-Athletics; games, 5; attendance, 124,222; receipts, $173,980; players, $79,071.

1911; clubs, Giants-Athletics; games, 6; attendance, 179,851; receipts $342,164; players, $127,910.

1912; clubs, Giants-Red Sox, games, 8; attendance, 251,901; receipts, $490,449; players, $147,572.

1913; clubs, Giants-Athletics; games, 5; attendance 150,992; receipts, $325,980; players, $135,164.

1914; clubs, Braves-Athletics; games, 4; attendance, 111,009; receipts $225,739; players, $121,898.

1915; clubs, Phillies-Red Sox; games, 5; attendance, 142,351; receipts, $320,361; players, $144,899.

*No series in 1904.

Note—In 1904 each of the victorious Red Sox got $1,182 while the losing Pirates got $1,316. That was because the 60-40 split system of the present day was not in force.

Results in Other Years.

The world series clashes from 1903 to 1915 inclusive—12 in all—show that the American League representatives have won seven flags, against five for the National. The winners were:

American League—1903, Red Sox; 1906 White Sox; 1910 Athletics; 1911 Athletics; 1912 Red Sox; 1913 Athletics; 1915 Red Sox.

National League—1905 Giants; 1907, Cubs; 1908 Cubs; 1909 Pirates; 1914 Braves.

The total games played, the names of the competing teams and the nuber of games each won (shown in parenthesis) is given here:

| Year | Games Played | Teams |
|---|---|---|
| 1903 | 8 | Red Sox (5) Pirates (3) |
| 1905 | 5 | Giants (4) Athletics (1) |
| 1906 | 6 | White Sox (4) Cubs (2) |
| 1907 | 5* | Cubs (4) Tigers (0) |
| 1908 | 5 | Cubs (4) Tigers (1) |
| 1909 | 7 | Pirates (4) Tigers (3) |
| 1910 | 5 | Athletics (4) Cubs (1) |

Peculiarities.

The biggest score ever made in a world series contest was in 1911 when the Athletics beat the Giants 13 to 2. The 1910 Athletics trimmed the Cubs, 12 to 5. The Giants rolled up 11 runs against the Red Sox in 1912 and the Red Sox of 1903 did likewise against the Pirates of that year.

Every game in 1905 was a shutout. The Giants won the first 3 to 0. The Athletics took the second 3 to 0. That was the only game they won. The Giants took the next three 9 to 0, 1 to 0, and 2 to 0.

There have been only six extra inning games in the 12 years. The Cubs and Tigers played to a 3-3 tie in 13 innings in 1907. In 1911 two extra sessions affairs were conducted. The Athletics won one, 3 to 2, eleven innings, the Giants got the other 4 to 3 in 10 innings.

Two extended games were played in 1912. The first ended 6-6 in the eleventh on account of darkness. The second was the concluding game of the series. It went 10 innings and the Sox won it—3 to 2—giving them the championship, largely because of that inglorious never-to-be-forgotten "$30,000 muff" by Snodgrass.

In 1914 the third game of the Braves-Athletics series went to 12 innings. Then "Hank" Gowdy busted it up by smashing out a drive that gave the verdict to the Braves, 5 to 4.

Tin Can or Canteen?

Popular etymology is always more interesting than the learned explanations of philologists. For instance, take the barrack room derivation of the word "canteen." It is no use trying to convince Tommy Atkins that it comes from the Italian "cantina," a small cellar. He had his own derivation, which he finds quite satisfactory. "Canteen" is simply "tin can" said backward. To justify this theory he simply invites one to look around. Certainly tin enters largely into the utensils and furnishing of the average canteen. The drinking vessels are tin, the counter is tin, and in many cases the tables also are covered with block tin. No wonder Tommy holds that the word has some connection with the metal that is so much in evidence.—Manchester Guardian.

Roumania's Great Salt Mines.

Roumania is famous for its salt mines, and could supply all Europe with this commodity for hundreds of years. In some mines the beds are from 600 to 750 feet thick, and at Sarat there is a salt mountain whose sides are quarried with electric machines which cut out blocks each a cubic yard in size, while the fragments are scooped up in steam shovels.

CITY OF GORLITZ NOW PRISON CAMP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—"The Greek troops which fell into the hands of the German army when the Teutonic allies occupied the Aegean seaport of Kavala would, under happier auspices than military internment, find the Silesian city of Gorlitz, where they are now held, one of the most interesting in the German empire," says a war geography bulletin issued today by the National Geographic Society on the city selected as a prison camp for the 400 officers and 6,000 men of King Constantine's army.

"Situated on the left bank of the Neisse river which flows northward into the Oder, Gorlitz is, next to Breslau, the largest and most flourishing city of Silesia. It is 129 miles southeast of Berlin, 60 miles east of Dresden and 50 miles west of Liegnitz. Its early prosperity, dating back five or six centuries, was due to its location on one of the important commercial routes to Poland.

"The town received its civic rights as early as the 12th century and it is famous today for its edifices of the Renaissance period, while perhaps the finest specimen of late-Gothic ecclesiastical architecture in this section of Germany is its Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, built in the 15th century. Another religious building of great interest is the Chapel of the Holy Cross which contains a 15th century model of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem.

"In proportion to its population of 85,000, Gorlitz enjoys the reputation of being one of the wealthiest municipalities of central Europe, due largely to the fact that it owns a magnificent forest of 70,000 acres. The older portions of the town are quaint and picturesque, while the industrial section is thoroughly modern and progressive. The chief products of its numerous factories are cloth, linens, toys, gold and silver ware, leather goods, chemicals, machinery and glass.

"On the southwest outskirts of the city rises the basaltic hill called Landeskrone, which commands a magnificent view of the entire region. It was on this hill that a peasant boy of the 16th century used to tend his father's sheep and dream of pails of gold and visits of mysterious strangers. This boy was Jakob Boehme, (also called Beem, Behmen and Behmont), who was pursuing his trade of master-shoemaker in Gorlitz when he received his first inspiration to write. This famous mystic, who was persistently assailed by Pastor Richter of Gorlitz throughout his career, is buried in the cemetery of the Chapel of the Holy Cross, and in the same God's Acre is the grave of Minna Herzlieb, the original of 'Ottilie' in Goethe's 'Elective Affinities' and a woman who left the imprint of her personality on some of the finest sonnets of Germany's greatest man of letters.

"In the suburbs of Gorlitz is the battlefield of Moys (1757) where the famous Prussian general Hans Karl von Winterfeldt, for 20 years Frederick the Great's most trusted friend and aide, received his first wound in a long career as a soldier, a wound which proved fatal. Winterfeldt owed his first important advance in military service to his extraordinary height; he attracted the eye of that eccentric monarch Frederick William I, and was made a lieutenant in the giants' regiment. He was the unfailing friend of the crown prince (after Frederick the Great) during the troublous times when the old monarch had his son court-martialed on a charge of desertion and according to some biographers stopped short of ordering the infliction of the death penalty only at the solicitation of the ambassadors of foreign powers.

"One of the most highly prized of Gorlitz's possessions is a war monument whose base contains the first cannon captured during the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. It was taken by a company of Gorlitz soldiers at Weissenburg, an Alsatian town where the initial major engagement of that struggle was fought."

Problem of the Electric Eel.

Invention during the next two or three centuries will probably be in the direction of imitating the wonderful economy and the simple, direct methods of nature. Take the electric eel. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest the organ shows so small an electromotive force that a good galvanometer is required to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the eel's spinal cord raises a potential of many volts with very little heat and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it.

Manners and Morals.

Do not let yourself think that if your aim is right, it does not matter about your manners. Just as a beautiful picture deserves an appropriate frame, and just as a pretty face needs suitable dressing to set it off, so character must be framed in courtesy, if it is to be appreciated.
